SAFETY NEWS

Safety Action for the Week – Heater and Carbon Monoxide Safety

Kent Team, we have shared this message before, but it is important enough to share again! It looks like the cold weather is going to be with us for a while, so we will all be firing up the heaters in our homes, RVs, apartments, and other living accommodations. The heat feels great, but if not done properly, heaters could lead to disaster.

Question: What is the leading cause of home fire deaths?

Answer: Home heating equipment.

According to the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA), heating equipment is the leading cause of home fire deaths and half of ALL home heating equipment fires are reported during the months of December, January, and February. As we head into the final Fall and eventual Winter months of 2020, let's get ahead of the problem and ensure we are protecting ourselves and our families by taking the time to "pre-flight" our home heating systems, fire alarms and carbon monoxide alarms.

Here are a few simple steps that can prevent most heating-related fires from happening:

- Keep anything that can burn at least three feet away from heating equipment, like the furnace, fireplace, wood stove, or portable space heater. Make sure you have not allowed clutter to accumulate around heating equipment when it was not in use.
- Have a three-foot "kid-free/pet-free zone" around open fires and space heaters. Start educating children and pets on the "safe" boundaries BEFORE the heating equipment is hot.
- Never use your oven to heat your home.
- Have a qualified professional install stationary space heating equipment, water heaters or central heating equipment according to the local codes and manufacturer's instructions.
- Have heating equipment and chimneys cleaned and inspected every year by a qualified professional.
- Remember to turn portable heaters off when leaving the room or going to bed.
- Always use the right kind of fuel, specified by the manufacturer, for fuel burning space heaters. If you are using a fuel burning space heater, ensure proper ventilation in the area you are heating. Carbon monoxide is a silent killer and can build up without any indication. Carbon monoxide is a tasteless, odorless gas that displaces oxygen, thereby causing suffocation.
- Make sure the fireplace has a sturdy screen to stop sparks from flying into the room. Ashes should be cool before putting them in a metal container. Keep the container a safe distance away from your home.
- Ensure you have both smoke and carbon monoxide alarms in your home and test those alarms at least once per month.

It only takes one day of cold weather to provide the opportunity for a home heater caused fire or carbon monoxide poisoning/death. Be proactive and make sure you and your family are prepared to heat your home safely. Hot or cold, we want you and your family to stay SAFE! Please take the time to share the importance of home heating system and carbon monoxide safety with your friends and family.
