IT NEWS

"Hello,

We just wanted to reach out and give everyone some advice on how to protect yourself and your identity. With the holiday season upon us, there are going to be lots of people calling and emailing with special offers of savings. While some of these offers are legitimate, many are not. FEW legitimate offers will have you click a link and sign into a website with your e-mail address. Most companies will send you a scannable coupon or a QPR code.

In the workplace, we are seeing an increase in spam and phishing as well. If you are unsure about an e-mail, do not reply to the e-mail, call the person to confirm the e-mail was sent from them. If you can't get in touch with them, call IT and let us look at the e-mail. As we continue to grow as a company, more and more bad actors are taking notice. We are seeing an influx of "contact your new vendor" and "New Invoice is ready" emails that are getting flagged by our system. While we have a robust system, nothing is perfect and some of these emails are still getting through. Again, a good rule of thumb is when you are unsure, reach out to someone for confirmation.

Thank you,

David Lyons
Director of IT"

SAFETY NEWS

Safety Action for the Week- Trick-or-Treating!

Think outside

Try to stick with outdoor trick-or-treating. The virus is much less likely to spread outside than in poorly ventilated indoor spaces. Be mindful of your current safe practices to help reduce any risks. Make sure your children know to avoid large groups of kids clustering at doorsteps or anywhere else the goodies are being handed out.

If you give out treats, consider sitting outside and lining up individually prepackaged goodies on a table for children to take. Non-edible treats are a good option, kids love $20 bills!

Don't forget other Halloween safety basics for outdoor trick-or-treating. If your kids will be out after dark, mark their costumes with reflective tape. Remind them to be careful around cars, as drivers may not see them. Also, make sure shoes fit well and costumes are short enough to prevent tripping or contact with flames.

Stay safe. Stay aware. Stay clean.

Until next week,

The Safety Guy
